62 Years

2016 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The last time Ken Brower traveled down the Yampa River in Northwest Colorado was with his father, David Brower, in 1952. This was the year his father became the first executive director of the Sierra Club and joined the fight against a pair of proposed dams on the Green River in Northwest Colorado. The dams would have flooded the canyons of the Green and its tributary, Yampa, inundating the heart of Dinosaur National Monument. With a conservation campaign that included a book, magazine articles, a film, a traveling slideshow, grassroots organizing, river trips and lobbying, David Brower and the Sierra Club ultimately won the fight ushering in a period many consider the dawn of modern environmentalism. 62 years later, Ken revisited the Yampa & Green Rivers to reflect on his father's work, their 1952 river trip, and how we will confront the looming water crisis in the American West.

78 Days

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Tree planting is one of the most physically and mentally demanding jobs in Canada. Working long days alone in the baking sun of desolate clear cuts, you can expect rain storms, snow covered tents, bears, a relentless bombardment of flies, swamps and mud; that's tree planting in Northern Alberta. The independent documentary, "78 Days", follows a camp of veteran tree planters dealing with the harsh working conditions of a never ending contract.

Genre: Land Perspective. 62 Minutes. Filmmaker: Jason Nardella.

180° South

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

Surfer and climber Jeff Johnson retraces the epic 1968 journey of Yvon Chouinard and Doug Tompkins, on which they drove, mountain climbed and surfed their way to Chilean Patagonia. Along the way, Jeff encounters surf, mountains, a dangerous ocean crossing, pulp mills, cowboys, and dams. The film is a road trip movie, a historic document, and an environmental call to arms, but mostly a meditation on what matters most in life –staying true to one's own vision and values.

The Adventures of Zack and Molly

2021 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

A new, four-part video series, The Adventures of Zack and Molly is about an unlikely duo exploring the deep ocean produced by ECOGIG in collaboration with Sherman's Lagoon creator and filmmaker Jim Toomey. Zack is more interested in the small world of his smartphone than the larger world around him. His online request for a roommate is answered by Molly, a tech-savvy Dumbo Octopus on a mission to tell the world about the importance of the deep ocean. Molly wants to use Zack's apartment for her global communications headquarters, but Zack is skeptical. To win Zack over, Molly takes him to her deep ocean home in the Gulf of Mexico to see its unique features and diverse marine life, and to help him understand how human activities threaten its health.

Genre: Oceans 15 Minutes. Filmmaker: Jim Toomey, Sara Beresford, Emily Davenport

Adventures of Oranges, The

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Boldly pioneering the environmental comedy genre, The Adventures of Oranges centers around a conversation between a Maui orange and a Florida orange in the produce section of a local grocery store. Through the telling of the Florida orange's journey to Maui, the film reveals the comic absurdity of how far most of our food travels before we eat it. The film was created by four middle and high school students from Maui.

Genre: Food. 6 Minutes. Filmmaker: Celine Hoppe, Keola Talaroc, Xander Robertson, Leimana Pu'u.

Ali Kabuk Was Here

2006 Wild & Scenic Film Festival MISSING

The Saudi Arabian Red Sea has historically been a difficult place to reach, due to the very strict requirements imposed upon visitors by the government of that kingdom. Hence, little is known about that region of the Red Sea, and until now, even less recorded by underwater cameras. "Ali Kabuk Was Here", filmed in and around the stunning reefs north and west of the coastal city of Jeddah over a period of three years, represents a visual distillation of nearly five hundred individual dives. RSP's underwater lens captures not only the incredibly diverse, rarely seen natural beauty of KSA's Red Sea, but its increasingly imperiled fragility as well.

Genre: Oceana, Adventure. 21 Minutes.

American Ascent, An

2016 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The first African-American expedition to tackle Denali (aka Mt. McKinley, North America's highest peak), sheds light on the complex relationship many African-Americans have with the outdoors. As the United States transitions to a "minority majority" nation, a staggering number of people of color do not identify with America's wild places. By embarking on the grueling multi-week climb of 20,237ft Denali, these climbers try to bridge this "adventure gap"-challenging outdated notions of what adventure looks like by changing the face of America's biggest and baddest mountain on the 100th anniversary of its first summit.

American Lawn

2015 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

For a lot of people, "in lawns we trust" is more than a motto: it's a way of life. Conversely, many folks see their lawn as an enemy. Lawns actually have a lot in common with other hot button social issues in that there's no ambivalence where they're concerned--one way or the other, everyone has an opinion. American Lawn explores this fascinating dichotomy, resulting in a kaleidoscopic, lighthearted, and insightful portrait of Americans of all stripes grappling with their relationships to lawn.

Genre: Global Perspective. 11 Minutes. Filmmaker: Robert Sickels, Big Whiskey Studios

American Outrage

2010 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Carrie and Mary Dann are feisty elderly Western Shoshone sisters who have always grazed their livestock outside their ranch in north central Nevada. That range is part of the Shoshone land from the 1863 Treaty of Ruby Valley. In 1974, the US sued the sisters for trespassing on US Public Land. Why would the US spend millions prosecuting two elderly women grazing a few hundred horses and cows in a desolate desert?

American Values, American Wilderness

2006 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

American Values, American Wilderness features a diverse group of Americans, including a teenage daughter of Cambodian refugees, a children's book author, a cancer survivor, a Native American tribal chairman, inner city kids, and the late Christopher Reeve, among others, as they share their love of wilderness. The film also highlights photography of some of the beautiful wild lands that have captured their hearts. These lands serve as sanctuaries for animals and plants, sources of clean air and water, places of challenge and spiritual renewal, and as legacies for future generations. A labor of love for Christopher Reeve - the late actor donated his time and energy to this film - the documentary is one of Reeve's last on-screen appearances before his death in October 2004.

The Ancient Woods

2019 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

NOT AVAILABLE

Filmed in one of the last remaining patches of old growth forest in Lithuania, The Ancient Woods is a place where the boundaries of time melt and everything that exists does not wither or age but "grows into" eternity. A poetic and atypical nature film takes its viewers on a wordless journey – from the forest thickets to the wolves' caves and up to black stork's nest, and then deep into the underwater forest, returning to the human beings inhabiting the edge of the woodland.

Angry Inuk

2018 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

NOT AVAILABLE

Seal meat is a staple food for Inuit, and many of the pelts are sold to offset the extraordinary cost of hunting. They are pushing for a sustainable way to take part in the global economy, but in opposition stands an army of well-funded activists and well-meaning celebrities who consider any seal hunting barbaric. Arnaquq-Baril and her cameras travel through the Canadian Arctic, giving voice to the people the animal activists rarely bother to meet: the hunters, the craftspeople, the families for whom the seal hunt is a critical part of their livelihood and survival.

Genre: Indigenous Perspectives. 85 Minutes. Filmmaker: Alethea Arnaquq-Baril

Animal Beatbox

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This film was a joy to make. It involved my girlfriend and my mother and 3 days of being children again building sets and cutting out animal pictures. It cost 80 Australian dollars to make and has now screened at over 20 festivals around the world and used in children's classrooms everywhere. Its intention was to wake people up for a second and embrace their spirit again. And also to lovingly appreciate the wonderful world we live in in a fun, insignificant way.

Another Way of Living: The Story of Reston, VA

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Robert Simon (1914-2015) had a vision for American life. While 1950s post-war suburban sprawl cultivated individualism and homogeneity and prioritized single-family homes, Bob Simon dreamed 'another way of living' that valued community, nature, and social equity. He set out to build a suburban town that integrated citizens across racial, economic, and religious divides. His vision was realized in the New Town of Reston, VA, in 1964. As Bob approached his 100th birthday, will the families of Reston come together to secure the diversity and sense of community he fought so hard to preserve? Or will the rising housing costs and rapid redevelopment mark the end of Bob's legacy in Reston?

As It Happens

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Telling the story of an adventure is never an easy task. Due to harshness of the environments encountered on expeditions, films about exploration are most often produced in an atmosphere far removed from the reality and soul of the experience...sometimes completely void of the athletes input. In the warmth of an editing suit, with all the creature comforts of the modern world at hand, it's easy for the story told to become a third party interpretation. As such, the intensity and spirit of the journey is often diluted and lost.... In January of 2010, Renan Ozturk & Cory Richards boarded planes bound for the Everest region of Nepal. Their goal was not only to establish a technical new alpine climb on Tawoche (21,320 ft.), but also to tell the story as it unfolded...from the field. With only digital SLR cameras, solar energy, a satellite modem, and two laptops, they shot, edited, and transmitted their journey from the high Himalaya. Using online social media, their story was followed by over 100k people in real time...these are their dispatches.

Genre: Adventure. 16 Minutes. Filmmaker: Renan Ozturk.

Awakening The Bear River

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The pressures and demands on the Sierra Nevada are reaching an all-time high. And, water politics in California is a complicated affair -- one that most people, even those living right in the midst of it -- do not fully understand. Through the lens of a camera and the lens of young minds, complex issues are explored through interviews with key players and through the words of the students themselves. What emerges is a picture of how we live on the earth, our relationship to 'resources' (historically and presently), and what 'sustainability' might mean in this era. Genre: Water, Rivers, Resources, Climate. 25 Minutes. Filmmaker: Tom & Debra Weistar. 2008 WSFF Best of Fest.

Awakening the Skeena

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

At the intersection of three of the last wild rivers of North America, in an area known as the Sacred Headwaters, a battle is underway to halt proposals for coal bed methane that threaten this fragile ecosystem and a way of life. Local resident, and chef, Ali Howard, embarks on a 26 day mission to swim the entire 610 km length of the Skeena River. From the birthplace of the river, past First Nations communities and eventually joining with the Pacific Ocean her remarkable journey is an inspiring story of one person's efforts to rally the people of the Skeena watershed to stand up for the river and their future.

2021 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This is a film about inclusion, identity, and hand-drawn heroes. Becoming Ruby shows that if you can't find a hero, you can create your own. For mountain biker, skier, and artist Brooklyn Bell, that hand-drawn hero was a comic character named Ruby J. Using Ruby as a role model, Brooklyn set out to "live like her, breathe like her, be unapologetically black like her," finding her own identity in a mix of dirt, snow, art, and inclusion.

Genre: Adventure 19 Minutes. Filmmaker: Lauren Cerre, Dave Mayers

BEE

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Back in her hometown, a young entomologist investigating the death of her dad's honey bees stumbles upon racial prejudices, lies and old family feuds. "BEE" is both a mystery and a love story: Many documentaries have been done about the Colony Collapse Disorder (CCD), but very few fiction-based films. I was interested in creating a unique film with a strong story and strong characters, to bring the terrible fate of the honeybees to a broader audience. JB Dunckel (The Virgin Suicides, Lost In Translation) wrote the original score. Breeda Wool and Frank Ashmore play the lead roles.

Genre: Food. 20 Minutes. Filmmaker: Raphael Hitzke.

Beyond Recognition

2015 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

After decades struggling to protect her ancestors' burial places, now engulfed by San Francisco's sprawl, a Native woman and her allies occupy a sacred site. When this fails to stop development, they vow to follow a new path--to establish the first women-led urban Indigenous land trust. Shattering stereotypes, Beyond Recognition explores the quest to preserve one's culture and homeland in a society bent on erasing them.

Genre: Indigenous Perspectives: 27 Minutes. Filmmaker: Michelle Grace Steinberg, Underexposed Films, Robyn Bykofsky

Bhopali

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

In 2008, a baby girl is born in Bhopal, India, the site of the worst industrial disaster in history: the Union Carbide gas leak. What should be a celebration is a tragedy. She has severe birth defects due to the contaminated water, but the American company responsible still refuses to make amends 27 years after the incident. Bhopali paints a chilling portrait of shattered lives such as hers, and the gross negligence and class disparities that keep them from finding justice, safety and peace of mind.

Bidder 70

2010 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Last year at Wild & Scenic, accomplished Telluride filmmakers Beth and George Gage met activist Tim DeChristopher. Since then the couple has been following Tim's story, with a feature film in the works.

Genre: Activism. Filmmaker: Beth & George Gage.

Bidder 70

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

BIDDER 70 follows Tim DeChristopher, a University of Utah student who on December 19, 2008, in a dazzling act of civil disobedience, derailed the outgoing Bush administration's illegal Bureau of Land Management oil and gas auction. As bidder #70, Tim bid 1.8 million dollars and won 22,000 pristine acres surrounding Utah's National Parks. He had no intention to pay or drill. In February 2009, the new Obama administration agreed the land should be safeguarded and invalidated the entire auction. Nevertheless, Tim was indicted on two federal felonies with penalties of up to ten years in prison. A personal portrait, BIDDER 70 illuminates how the choices we make determine our future and the world we live in. Tim DeChristopher puts a face on Time Magazine's 2011 Person of the Year, the Protestor.

Buck

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

"Your horse is a mirror to your soul, and sometimes you may not like what you see. Sometimes, you will." So says Buck Brannaman, a true American cowboy and sage on horseback who travels the country for nine grueling months a year helping horses with people problems. BUCK, a richly textured and visually stunning film, follows Brannaman from his abusive childhood to his phenomenally successful approach to horses. A real life "horse-whisperer", he eschews the violence of his upbringing and teaches people to communicate with horses through leadership and sensitivity, not punishment. Buck possesses near magical abilities as he dramatically transforms horses - and people - with his understanding, compassion and respect. In this film, the animal-human relationship becomes a metaphor for facing the daily challenges of life. A truly American story about an unsung hero, BUCK is about an ordinary man who has made an extraordinary life despite tremendous odds.

THE C WORD

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Cancer is no laughing matter – but the archaic way we are battling it is. With a dose of good humor, heart, and a touch of rock-n'-roll beat, THE C WORD reveals the forces at play keeping us sick and dares to ask: if up to 70% of cancer deaths are preventable ... what are we waiting for? At the heart of THE C WORD are powerful, twin narratives: one from celebrated French neuroscientist and cancer revolutionary Dr. David Servan-Schreiber, the other from THE C WORD's own director, Meghan L. O'Hara. After braving the journey from diagnosis to wellness, Meghan and David join forces on a wild ride of discovery; including hidden science, the absurdity of the status quo, and a vibrant cast of characters changing the game.

Winner of 7 awards, THE C WORD asks us to reconsider our approach and advocate instead for society-wide lifestyle and systemic changes. Narrated by Morgan Freeman, the message is simple, life-changing, radical: we can beat cancer before cancer beats us.

California Trout – Pit River

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

After CalTrout helped force the rewatering of the Pit River Powerhouse #3 stretch in the 1980s, one of California's best -- and toughest -- fisheries was born. Renowned for its difficult access and wading, the Pit River's PG&E-owned hydroelectric facilities recently came up for a FERC relicensing. CalTrout participated in the negotiations, and while higher flows were needed to protect trout from seasonal temperatures on Pit #4 and #5, the flows on Pit #3 ended up a little higher than we wanted. Recently, a group of CalTrout employees and anglers visited Pit #3, #4 and #5 to survey the new flows, in part to inform the ongoing "adaptive management" process we insisted be part of agreement. In effect, it allows for flows to be revisited if the best available science tells us the relicensing goals aren't being met (including recreational use). Shot by noted fly fishing filmmaker Mike E. Wier, this video is part documentary, part science, part fish porn, and all Pit River.

Genre: Wildlife. 6 Minutes. Filmmaker: Mike E. Wier.

Coast is Clear: Learning from our Mistakes

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The Canadian government is considering a proposal from Enbridge for a 1,170 km pipeline from Alberta's tar sands to the coast of British Columbia. The pipeline would bring more than 200 crude oil tankers annually to this spectacular coast. With this kind of traffic, it will not be a question of IF a spill will occur, but a question of when, where, and how large. Each year since 2003, Enbridge is responsible for at least 63 spills, leaks, and releases. Greenpeace is calling on the Canadian government to legally ban oil tankers on Canada's west coast, and on Enbridge CEO Pat Daniel to cancel the proposed Northern Gateway Pipelines Project so that Enbridge doesn't become the BP of B.C.

Genre: Resources, Oceana. 2 Minutes. Filmmaker: Aube Girouz.

Consume This!

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Are Americans too materialistic? Are we willfully trashing the planetary ecology in order to serve the desires and drives of the ego? And what, or who could be driving this powerful force of seduction? Consume This Movie takes a critical look at social injustice, peak oil, resource depletion and our deep need to feel connected to each other through what we choose to consume. This 80 minute documentary also examines the frenzied pace of fast-lane materialism that is begging to burn us out. We Americans are just now beginning to yearn for a simpler life, but is it too late? Have we set in motion a runaway train that threatens to undermine the ecological, social and spiritual cornerstones that make the pursuit of happiness possible in the first place?

Courage of Neighbors, The: Stories from the Rwandan Genocide

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

According to Human Rights Watch, the Rwandan genocide resulted in the death of at least 800,000 people. In a matter of months in early 1994, Hutus slaughtered the majority of the country's Tutsi population, despite the fact that the two groups had long lived side-by-side. However, amid these terrible acts of violence, incredible stories of humanity also emerged. Many Hutus, defying ethnic divisions, risked their lives by hiding Tutsi neighbors in their homes. In 2008, Tutsis who were saved reunited with those neighbors who put their lives on the line and rejected violence. This short film interviews both Hutus and Tutsis as they recall incredible acts of humanity that took place even during the darkest days of the genocide.

Damocracy

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Damocracy is a short documentary that exposes the myth of dams as 'green' energy through two examples from Amazonia and Mesopotamia: the Belo Monte Dam in Brazil and the Ilisu Dam in Turkey. The documentary shows the potential disasters these dams would cause on cultural heritage, wildlife and local communities who rely on the rich natural resources provided by the Tigris and Xingu rivers. The film also questions the sanity of climate change solutions that depend on the destruction of 'the lungs of the Earth' and 'the cradle of civilization'. It is a call to action to save this priceless natural and cultural heritage being gambled for the interests of a few.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 34 Minutes. Filmmaker: Todd Southgate, Tolga Temuge, Doga Dernegi.

Dear Governor Cuomo

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

On a rainy night in May of 2012 a coalition of musicians, scientists and activists gathered in Albany, NY, on the governor's front doorstep, calling for a ban on hydraulic-fracturing. The goal of the varied participants, many of whom had never met before this night, was to explain in clear terms the environmental, economic and health risks of fracking and to motivate people to rise up against the practice using a unique blend of music and message. The cord that bound them all was that they were first and foremost New Yorkers: New Yorkers Against Fracking. Genre: Energy, Climate Change, Resources. 75 Minutes. Filmmaker: Jon Bowermaster.

Dear Governor Hickenlooper (Not Available)

2015 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This film is a compilation by Colorado creatives that follows Shane Davis (a.k.a. The Fractivist) as he guides us through a series of vignettes. These stories were collected from the state's filmmakers, farmers, skiers, activists and concerned citizens and use both science and emotional appeal to explain why fracking is problematic in Colorado. This confident and brash film incorporates work from filmmakers, including Suzan Beraza (Bag It and Uranium Drive-In), Alexandria Bombach ("MoveShake" series and Common Ground), Pete McBride (Chasing Water and The Water Tower), Jeff Orlowski (Chasing Ice) and Scott Upshur (The Local's Bite). Genre: Activism. 20 Minutes. Filmmaker: Stash Wislocki, David Holbrooke, Allison Wolff.

Death By Design

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Consumers love – and live on – their smartphones, tablets and laptops. A cascade of new devices pours endlessly into the market, promising ever better communication, non-stop entertainment and instant information. The numbers are staggering. By 2020, four billion people will have a personal computer. Five billion will own a mobile phone. But this revolution has a dark side, hidden from most consumers. In an investigation that spans the globe, filmmaker Sue Williams investigates the underbelly of the electronics industry and reveals how even the smallest devices have deadly environmental and health costs. From the intensely secretive factories in China, to a ravaged New York community and the high tech corridors of Silicon Valley, Death By Design tells a story of environmental degradation, of health tragedies, and the fast approaching tipping point between consumerism and sustainability.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 74 Minutes. Filmmaker: Sue Williams

Death Makes Life Possible

2015 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Death is something that most people fear and don't want to think about. But is it possible that facing our mortality can inspire us to live our lives more fully? Death Makes Life Possible follows cultural anthropologist and scientist Marilyn Schlitz, Ph.D., as she explores the mysteries of life and death from a variety of perspectives and world traditions.

Genre: Health. 63Minutes. Filmmaker: Marilyn Schlitz, Deepak Chopra.

Death of a Forest

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

With global warming evident in many places around the world, the forest of North America are undergoing huge changes. The pine beetle and pine trees have co-evolved together and until the past 2-3 decades, the numbers of beetles have been kept in check by very cold winters that would kill the beetles, thus limiting their lifespan and ability to reproduce. However, with warmer temperatures during the winters, the beetles are surviving in astounding numbers and are killing the forests of the western US and Canada. To date millions of acres of forests and billions of trees are dead and there is no end in sight. Some estimates predict that by 2013, 80% of the North American forests could be gone. In addition, we are losing forests that otherwise provide a carbon sink for our production of greenhouse gases, and as the trees die, they emit more Carbon Dioxide back into the atmosphere. Nothing, except very cold winter weather, will stop the beetles.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 14 Minutes. Filmmaker: Michael Pellegatti.

Elk Grass

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Combining traditional techniques with new animation technology, this animated music video for the song 'Elk Grass' by Pete Van Leeuwen captures the spirit of the lonely Elk Mountain and his longing for a companion. Elk Mountain is home to abounding wildlife, but he can only stiffly observe them in his rocky form. Elk Mountain communes with the night stars and finds a way to beckon an elk cow to wander inside his ear-cave. Told in an abstract and dreamy manner, the viewer floats in and out through space around the lonely mountain, capturing the serenity and isolation inherent in nature.

Genre: Animation. 2 Minutes. Filmmaker: Abbey Luck, Pete Van Leeuwen.

Elk River

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Scientist Arthur Middleton, photographer Joe Riis, artist James Prosek and filmmaker Jenny Nichols join forces in this documentary that captures the migration of elk in the Yellowstone area through a multidisciplinary lens. For many of the elk herds that summer in Yellowstone National Park, home is outside the protected park boundaries the rest of the year, as far as 70 miles away. Mirroring a similar expedition undertaken in 1871 that fused science and the arts, this modern band of explorers join their ungulate counterparts on a trek from Wyoming's rangeland through snowy mountain passes and treacherous river crossings to the rugged beauty of Yellowstone's high-alpine meadows. Along the way, they meet backcountry guides and cattle ranchers whose lives are intricately tied with the fate of the elk and other migratory species that call the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem home.

Enough Is Enough

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Over the years, the McCloud River has given much of herself away; with two thirds of her natural flow diverted, a dam to the north that contributed to the loss of one species, and another to her south that eliminated the migratory passage of steelhead and salmon.

Remarkably, her blue ribbon grace and beauty prevailed. And to this day she remains a treasure deserving of our respect and protection.

With the proposed raise of Shasta Dam, her safety is on the line once again...

Genre: Water/River Issues. 14 Minutes. Filmmakers: Keith Brauneis and California Trout.

Evolution of Organic

2018 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Told by those who built the movement, Evolution of Organic is the story of organic agriculture. A motley crew of back-to-the-landers, spiritual seekers and farmers' sons and daughters reject chemical farming and set out to explore organic alternatives. It's a heartfelt journey of change – from a small band of rebels to a cultural transformation in the way we grow and eat food. By now organic has gone mainstream, split into an industry oriented toward bringing organic to all people and a movement that has realized a vision of sustainable agriculture. It's the most popular and successful outgrowth of the environmental impulse of the last fifty years.

Fall River, The: California's Cold Water Oasis

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The Fall River is California's largest spring-fed wild trout fishery. Located approximately 50 miles to the east of Mount Shasta in a big, flat, agricultural valley, the river generates up to one million acre-feet per year of cold, clean, nutrient rich water. The water is used for hydro-power, agriculture, municipal supply, and outdoor recreation, but the river itself faces some serious problems. The Fall River Conservancy (FRC) formed in 2009 to address invasive aquatic species, over sedimentation, and water quality issues affecting this extremely valuable resource.

Fixing The Earth - One Watershed at a Time

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Fixing the Earth and restoring balance is an age-old ceremonial practice for the tribes of the lower Klamath River. The Yurok Tribe's Fisheries Program has applied this long standing cultural ethic to the management and restoration of Chinook and Coho salmon populations of the Klamath River, and to other species such as sturgeon and lamprey eel. This film presents the historic context of the Yurok Tribe's struggle to affirm their fishing rights and to fully participate in the management and restoration of Klamath fisheries today and into the future.

Flathead Wild

2010 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

You could argue that an area that's been clear cut may eventually come back in 1000 years or so. Mountain top removal is different though... the mountain is actually removed, trucked and taken away. No one's ever going to put that mountain back. As a result of this type of mining and drilling proposals, the Flathead River is one of North America's most endangered. Flathead Wild follows the International League of Conservation photographers as they descend on the Flathead River Valley with local conservation groups and work to get the perfect, iconic image to give the Flathead coalition the tools it needs for success.

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

It is happening all across America-rural landowners wake up one day to find a lucrative offer from an energy company wanting to lease their property. Reason? The company hopes to tap into a reservoir dubbed the "Saudi Arabia of natural gas." Halliburton developed a way to get the gas out of the ground-a hydraulic drilling process called "fracking"-and suddenly America finds itself on the precipice of becoming an energy superpower.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 107 Minutes. Filmmaker: Josh Fox.

GASLAND II

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

GASLAND PART II takes a deeper, broader look at the dangers of hydraulic fracturing, or fracking, the controversial method of extracting natural gas and oil, now occurring on a global level (in 32 countries worldwide). The film argues that the gas industry's portrayal of natural gas as a clean and safe alternative to oil is a myth and that fracked wells inevitably leak over time, contaminating water and air, hurting families, and endangering the earth's climate with the potent greenhouse gas, methane. In addition the film looks at how the powerful oil and gas industries are "contaminating our democracy."

Genre: Resources. 15 Minutes. Filmmaker: Sally Rubin, Jen Gilomen.

Ghosts of Appalachia Trailer

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The Appalachian mountains are older than the Himalayas and an American treasure rich in biodiversity. In the form of coal, these mountains supply 35% of our nation's electricity, the consumption of which is expected to double by 2030. To keep up with this increasing demand for energy, a faster, cheaper form of mining is being used, known as mountaintop removal or MTR. But what is happening to the communities at the bottom of these torn mountains? This trailer is a sneak peak for the feature film to come.

Genre: Mountains, Resources, Community. 12 Minutes. Filmmaker: Jen Gilomen, Sally Rubin.

Ghosts of the Arctic

2018 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Follow the grit and determination of polar photographer Joshua Holko as he traverses the frozen landscape of Svalbard, in the high Arctic, to encounter polar bears on foot. Taking place during one of the coldest periods in the last few years, the crew suffered frostbite and camera failures during the filming process. The aerials featured in the film do great justice to the stark beauty of the arctic landscape.

Genre: Wildlife. 7 Minutes. Filmmaker: Abraham Joffe

Gimp Monkeys, The

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

What has four legs, five arms and three heads? The Gimp Monkeys. Craig DeMartino lost his leg after a 100-foot climbing fall. Pete Davis was born without an arm. Bone cancer claimed Jarem Frye's left leg at the age of 14. While the three are linked by what they are MISSING, it is their shared passion for climbing that pushed them towards an improbable goal – the first all-disabled ascent of Yosemite's iconic El Capitan. There was no cause. No call for awareness. No fundraising. "We are climbers first, disabled second," says DeMartino. "If you're a climber, you want to climb El Cap." The Gimp Monkeys follows their successful ascent of Zodiac, a 1,800-foot route on the Southeast Face of El Capitan.

Genre: Community. Filmmaker: John de Graaf.

Great Vacation Squeeze, The

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The United States is the only rich country without a law requiring paid vacation time for workers, and American vacations, already among the shortest in the world, are getting shorter. Vacations matter--for health, family bonding, nature appreciation, and many other factors. Beautifully photographed in Yosemite National Park, Europe and Washington State, this film makes the case for more vacation time, using personal stories, humor and expert commentary from Yosemite National Park ranger Shelton Johnson, travel writer Rick Steves and cardiologist Sarah Speck, and suggests that Americans would do well to make vacation time a political policy issue.

Greenpeace: Making a Stand

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This compelling documentary looks at the 35-year evolution of Greenpeace from the early days of the environmental movement in the 1970s, to the front lines of a potentially dangerous campaign in Argentina. Thirty-five years after the Phyllis Cormack, Greenpeace's first seafaring vessel, set sail for Amchitka to fight testing of the nuclear bomb, the filmmaker follows one of Greenpeace's founders, Rex Weyler, to Argentina where he interacts with young Greenpeace recruits on a potentially dangerous campaign to save the Chaco forest. Despite its modern rhythm, the old drumming still echoes through the jungle as new wars are being fought on today's environmental battle grounds.

Genre: Mountains, Resources. 48 Minutes. Filmmaker: Leigh Badgley.

Gregg Treinish, A MoveShake Story

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

When asked how others could follow their passions for making change, Gregg Treinish simply replied: "Three seconds of courage..That's all it takes." Gregg combined his passion for adventure, his deep interest and education in wildlife biology, and three seconds of courage to found Adventurers and Scientists for Conservation. A year of unpaid work and complete dedication was followed by a wave of support that continues to grow. Beneath the success, however, lies the reality of day-to-day life. In this story, we hear how Gregg struggles to balance the responsibility he feels toward the environment with the relationships he holds dear. We'll follow Gregg during one difficult expedition where he realizes that relationships are what give us the courage to make change in the first place.

Hat Creek: A Wild Trout Legacy

2020 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Back in 1971, when Caltrout was formed, the Hat Creek project demonstrated that an organization of passionate anglers could come together to restore a stream and bring back an iconic fishery. More than that though, a new concept for wild trout management was embraced - the idea that we can do without hatchery fish, that the ethic of catch and release is good for fish and anglers alike, and the idea that having a controlled set of regulations focused on wild trout could be successful.

Heliotropes

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

Adapted from the poem by Brian Christian (author, THE MOST HUMAN HUMAN), HELIOTROPES offers a glance at how certain patterns repeat themselves at different levels of nature, whether we know it or not. Sunflower seeds and petals are known to follow the Fibonacci sequence, a mathematical formula that makes their structure maximally efficient--but they don't "know" they're doing this. Likewise, humans go to such lengths to mathematically optimize flight patterns to maximize profit for airlines, but perhaps we don't realize that what we are doing, when one stands back and looks at that flight data statistically, is simply trying to stay in the light.

Honor the Treaties

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Honor the Treaties is a short film that examines photographer Aaron Huey's powerful advocacy work for Native American rights on the Pine Ridge Reservation. The film explores the idea that journalists often 'get the story wrong.' Aaron's advocacy work began with his 2010 TED Talk calling for the return of the Black Hills to the Lakota Sioux. Viewed online over 800,000 times, the talk caught the attention of legendary street artist Shepard Fairey, who, along with artist Ernesto Yerena, teamed up on a nationwide poster campaign based on Aaron's images. Aaron's movement into advocacy is shown in our film through his collaboration with Fairey. Juxtaposing the urban environment of Los Angeles against the stark, rural poverty of Pine Ridge, the film seeks to draw connections between art & advocacy, ultimately making a case for empowering individuals to 'tell their own stories'.

I Just Love to Paddle

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

There are few paddlers in the world that can match experience and knowledge of Nappy

Napoleon. If there were degrees in paddling, he has the highest doctorate. I Just Love to Paddle is a story of a man who lives, loves, practices, teaches and perpetuates an ancient tradition in the contemporary world. There are many stories of heroes long gone, but this is a story about somebody who is still around us and who serves as source of vast knowledge and a connection to the ancient Hawaiian traditions. Nappy provides a modern day example of an ancient Hawaiian paradigm: superb ocean judgment, wisdom about the hearts of others, total commitment to his life calling, and an unparalleled decency of character. The story focuses on an expedition in July 2008, when Napoleon (67 years old) with five paddling companions attempt to cross 9 Hawaiian channels in 6 consecutive days, each in a one-man outrigger canoe, a total of almost 240 miles.

Genre: Adventure. 31 Minutes. Filmmaker: Marta Czajkowska.

Idle Threat

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Idling engines consume more than 6 billion gallons of gasoline annually in the U.S., a significant but little-known contributor to local air pollution, respiratory disease and global climate change. Idle Threat is a lively look at one man's spirited struggle to improve public health by raising awareness about idling's impact, starting in New York City. Against all odds, he succeeds, helping improve local air quality, and in the process gains world-wide recognition for the anti-idling cause, with articles featured in the Wall Street Journal, New Yorker magazine, and the Financial Times. Featuring Click and Clack from NPR's Car Talk, and Mayor Michael Bloomberg, Idle Threat profiles one man's challenging quest to make his city and the world a

An Ill Wind

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The Moapa River Indian Reservation, tribal home of the Moapa Band of Paiutes, sits about 30 miles north of Las Vegas and about 300 yards from the coal ash ponds and landfills of the Reid Gardner Power Station. Coal ash is the toxic ash and sludge left at the end of the coal burning process. It's laced with arsenic, mercury, lead and other heavy metals. It's the second largest waste stream in America and it's currently unregulated. If the conditions are just wrong, coal ash picks up from Reid Gardner and moves across the desert like a toxic sandstorm sending the local residents running for their homes. The reservation has lung, heart and thyroid disease rates that are abnormally high and the power plant is currently seeking to expand its coal ash storage capability.

Into the Middle of Nowhere

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This documentary celebrates the uniqueness of childhood and the nonexistence of limits to a child's imagination. In an outdoor nursery in the woods, children create their own individually constructed worlds and can test out the boundaries of reality. The environment allows them to explore everything through their own experience and imagination while also bringing to the foreground their personal and collective development. The woods become the place where the normal rules and regulations of society come to a halt and where the children transform the surroundings with their play.

Genre: Adventure. 15 Minutes. Filmmaker: Anna Frances Ewert.

Into the Mind

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

From the creators of the award winning film “All.I.Can”, Sherpas Cinema is proud to present their newest feature film, Into The Mind. With stunning cinematography and groundbreaking storytelling techniques, the Sherpas blur the lines between dream state and reality, and immerse you into the mind of a common skier as he attempts to climb and ski the ultimate mountain. Innovative athlete segments are actually a glimpse into his dreamscape, each one harboring messages that help inform our hero’s current, real-life choices. As you experience the majesty of Alaska, Bolivia, the Himalaya and beyond, Into the Mind paints a philosophical portrait of human kind. How do we balance risk versus reward? Why are we inspired to rise to the challenges in our lives and what do we learn on this journey to attain them?

Iran: A Skier's Journey

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Cautioned not to travel to Iran, Chad Sayers and Forrest Coots decide to go, regardless. They immediately find comfort in Tehran's bustling bazaars, Isfahan's dazzling mosques, and the powder filled slopes of the Alborz and Zagros mountain ranges, topping 3,000m. It is a culture not easily understood, but profoundly welcoming. As journalist Elaine Sciolino writes, "Iran can be dazzling, and light-filled, a reflection of its complexities; but it can also be cold, confusing, and impenetrable." Yet they are reminded, as Pico Iyer writes, "to learn more about the world than our newspapers will accommodate."

The Islands and the Whales

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

NOT AVAILABLE

In their remote home in the North Atlantic, the Faroe Islanders have always eaten what nature could provide, proud to put local food on the table. The land yields little, so they have always relied on harvesting their seas. Hunting whales and seabirds kept them alive for generations, and gave them the way of life they love; a life they would pass on to their children. But today they face a grave threat to this tradition. It is not the controversy surrounding whaling that threatens the Faroese way of life; the danger is coming from the whales themselves. One of the first to feel the affects of our ever more polluted oceans, they have discovered that their beloved whales are toxic, contaminated by the outside world. What once secured their survival now endangers their children and the Faroe Islanders must make a choice between health and tradition.

Island at the End of the World: Patagonia

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

It is the last great wilderness of its kind, a rare and precious haven for some of Earth's most indestructible creatures. Covering more than half-a-million square miles of Chile and Argentina, this wild place is known as Patagonia. At its crown tip is a grand island, Tierra del Fuego, a land as harsh as it is beautiful. This film tracks several species that call this extreme environment home. But the guanaco, condor and Magellanic penguin who share this spectacular place with orcas, parrots and elephant seals are facing increasing pressure from humans. The program details how new conservation models may save them and preserve the wildness at the bottom of the world.

Jeremy Jones' Further

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

In 2010, TGR's Deeper rocked the snowboarding world as Jeremy Jones pushed himself and his crew to summit world-class lines in remote backcountry zones. Experimenting to see if this backcountry camping approach would work for the level of riding Jones was after, the TGR crew executed amazing first descents around the world. Through research, patience and hard work, the crew was able to live in caves and on glaciers to ride untouched lines without another human in sight. Further explores some of the world's most remote terrain while continuing Jones' mission to camp deep in the backcountry and on the summits of unriden lines to access nearly vertical spines and wide open powder fields.

King Corn

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival MISSING

America's fast-food empire is fueled by a secret ingredient: corn. High fructose corn syrup makes the sodas sweet, corn-fed beef makes the burgers fat, and corn oil crisps the fries. As college buddies Ian Cheney and Curt Ellis find out, their junk food generation has grown up eating so much corn that if you test their hair— it's actually made of the stuff. King Corn follows Ian and Curt to a tiny town in the middle of Iowa, where they plant and grow an acre of America's most powerful crop, and attempt to follow its fate as food. What they find is alternately hilarious and horrifying: genetically modified seeds and home-brewed corn syrup, a bumper crop of obesity and diabetes, and a government paying farmers to grow what's making us sick. You'll never enjoy a soda again.

Light Bulb Conspiracy, The

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The Light Bulb Conspiracy uncovers how planned obsolescence has shaped our lives and economy since the 1920's, when manufacturers deliberately started shortening the life of consumer products to increase demand. Shot over three years in Europe, the U.S. and Ghana, The Light Bulb Conspiracy investigates the evolution and impact of planned obsolescence through interviews with historians, economists, designers and manufacturers, along with archival footage and internal company documents. The film also looks at modern examples of planned obsolescence, including computer printers and the controversy over the inability to replace iPod batteries. The film concludes with examples of consumers and businesses moving towards more sustainable practices and products, including Warner Philips, great grandson of the founder of Philips Electronics, who is producing an LED bulb designed to last 25 years.

Liter Of Light, A

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The film documents a foundation's project to light up a poor neighborhood through the efforts of a local man who works for them. He becomes a beacon of hope to his community when he installs hundreds of solar-powered light bulbs in his neighbor's houses. The clever device is made from old plastic soda bottles filled with water and bleach. Many of the homeowners can barely afford electricity and because their houses stand so close to each other, they don't really get much daylight. Lynx

2009 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

When a scientist happens upon a political firestorm, can he remain impartial? Art Wilder is a research ecologist working in Montana's Crazy Mountains. A postdoc in charge of a public research office, Art studies the elusive lynx, an endangered species of cat at home in the snowy forests of the Northwest. His research is controversial because any land shown to be lynx habitat becomes protected, and can't be logged or developed. When someone plants lynx hairs at Art's survey sites, Art has to make a crucial decision: let the false data show that lynx are found in great numbers, thereby protecting the land. Or point out the unethical action, defending the credibility of science but potentially letting the land go.

Mining Patagonia

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Situated in the mountains of Southern Arizona, the town of Patagonia has one of the most diverse populations of plants and animals in the country. Though the area has a past history of mining, in the last 50 years the town has successfully redefined itself as an eco-tourism destination. Current proposals for open pit mines threaten the beauty and activities which draw tourists to Southern Arizona. Cattle ranching and organic agriculture are also at risk. At the heart of the conflict is the 1872 mining law, which encourages exploitation of public lands, thereby turning the U.S. into another third world country.

Momenta

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This is a story about the west, known for its forward-thinking innovation, being caught in the crosshairs of an American paradox. Old innovation vs. new. Currently, there are proposals to ship coal from the Powder River Basin in Wyoming to ports on the Pacific coast and eventually to Asia to be burned. This will cause countless negative impacts to local communities along the coal export trail, and wreak havoc on our global environment. The Pacific Northwest is at a crossroads - do we go the way of dirty coal, or do we say 'NO!?' The choice is clear: It's time to embrace innovation, move away from fossil fuels, and ignite the clean energy economy. Momenta is narrated by world-renowned climber, Conrad Anker, and features environmentalist Bill McKibben and snowboarder Jeremy Jones.

Moving the Giants: An Urgent Plan to Save the Planet

2016 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Twenty years ago, David Milarch, a northern Michigan nurseryman with a penchant for hard living, had a vision: angels came to tell him that the earth was in trouble. Its trees were dying, and without them, human life was in jeopardy. The solution, they told him, was to clone the champion trees of the world-the largest, the hardiest, the ones that had survived millennia and were most resilient to climate change-and create a kind of Noah's ark of tree genetics. Without knowing if the message had any basis in science, or why he'd been chosen for this task, Milarch began his mission of cloning the world's great trees. Many scientists and tree experts told him it couldn't be done, but, twenty years later, his team has successfully cloned many of the world's oldest trees-among them giant redwoods and sequoias.

Mountain Top Removal

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

At times, it seems news of environmental and ecological exploitations of other nations is at the forefront of our awareness. What's happening in our own country, our own backyard, is neglected or ignored. Director Mike O'Connell, though, points a sharp lens at the harsh coal-mining practice called mountaintop removal, a process that involves clear cutting and then the removal of up to 1,000 vertical feet of mountain by explosives. He is there when citizens, students and evangelical environmentalists confront the nation's fourth largest coal company. Music from Donna the Buffalo, Sarah Hawker and John Specker is featured in the film. Genre: Mountains, Resources, Community. 74 Minutes. Filmmaker: Michael O'Connell. 2008 Jury Award.

Mr. Smith's Peach Seed

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

In 1968 Roger Smith ate a peach during a break from work. When he was finished he took out a pocketknife and began carving the peach pit into a tiny pig. 43 years later the retired meter reader and cattle rancher from Culloeka, Tennessee has carved hundreds of peach seeds into hummingbirds, stingrays, gospel choirs, entire villages, even a baseball stadium with 100+ figures. Roger Smith's unique art, inspiring talent, and fascinating life are the subject of a short documentary by filmmaker Stewart Copeland. The explores Smith's process as well as his inspirations and presents a thoughtful portrait of a self-taught artist who's distinctive art is as much a part of his rural Southern landscape as it is a reflection of it.

My Father, Who Art in Nature

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

My father, who art in nature, is a documentary film by Alden Olmsted, son of California naturalist and John Muir follower John Olmsted. John left the family when Alden was very young to preserve thousands of acres of California parks from Mendocino to Lake Tahoe - including, among others, Jug Handle State Reserve, Goat Mountain, the South Yuba Wild & Scenic River, Bridgeport covered bridge, the Independence Trail State Park, and many more. On September 29th of this past year, cancer was found in John's liver, and he was given six months to live. Alden became his caregiver, and began chronicling this journey of forgiveness, and of finally getting to know his father. This film is his story.

North of the Sun (Nord for Sola)

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

Inge Wegge (25) and Jorn Ranum (22) spent nine months of cold, Norwegian winter in the isolated and uninhabited bay of a remote, arctic island by the coast of Northern-Norway, facing nothing but the vast Atlantic Ocean. There they built a cabin out of driftwood and other cast-off materials that washed up on shore and ate expired food the stores would otherwise have thrown away. But the boys brought with them two items of utmost importance: their surfboards -- perhaps their biggest motivation for the arctic adventure -- because the remote bay holds a well-kept secret, some of the world's finest surfing waves.

Genre: Adventure. 46 Minutes. Filmmaker: Inge Wegge, Jorn Nyseth Ranum, Anne Bergseng.

Northern Grease

2016 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This film tells a story of young snowboarders and surfers learning the real social and environmental impacts of resource extraction. Through humor, adventure and an evolving critical perspective, Northern Grease depicts the often-untold stories of those on the front lines. Organism

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

A few years ago, filmmaker/songwriter Ken Glaser witnessed nature putting on an unusual show for the residents of Diamond Bar, CA. For several balmy August days, thousands of birds descended like raindrops from cruising altitude at dusk and gathered near the Kmart. Floating on air currents like swimmers carried by waves, they played in the wind for an hour, at times acting like a single, pulsating organism, before finally settling on a large tree. Ken captured the two nights on film, and wrote and recorded an original score that complements the hypnotic activity of the flock. Although the images seem impossible at first glance, no special effects were applied.

Out of Balance

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Just how much can one corporation influence governments, the media and citizens? While the Earth's climate is pushed further out of balance by increasing use of fossil fuels, ExxonMobil continues to assert undue power around the world— making record profits while ignoring climate change science for which there has been overwhelming consensus for over ten years. Out of Balance does not just critique ExxonMobil, it also offers challenging, large-scale ideas for the global social changes that must take place if there's any chance of having a livable planet for future generations.

Genre: Climate, Resources, Community. 65 Minutes. Filmmaker: Tom Jackson.

Outnumbered in Africa

2019 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Most people know the story of Zimbabwe's most famous lion and how he was illegally shot by an American dentist in 2015. The world reacted by donating over $1 million, which funded cutting-edge research to better protect Cecil's pack. Few people know that some of that research was done by Moreangels Mbizah, a young Zimbabwean woman, Oxford University Ph.D. candidate, and mother. Outnumbered in Africa follows Moreangels' journey after Cecil's death, revealing a deeper story of beauty and tragedy that receives far less attention in the world of African wildlife conservation.

Overture for Animal Place

2018 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Music in the Mountains' Young Composer Project collaborated with Animal Place, a 600 acre sanctuary for factory farmed animals in Grass Valley, CA, to bring you Overture for Animal Place. Students explored the harsh realities of factory animal farming and AP's belief that "all creatures are important, human and non-human animal life". Students became profoundly aware of where their food comes from, the importance of a permanent sanctuary, pertinent education, and legislation. Students then wrote music inspired by these powerful experiences. This new music was performed by professional musicians as part of Music in the Mountains' Summerfest.

Pandora's Promise

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

A hit at the Sundance Film Festival, PANDORA'S PROMISE dares to tackle the emerging divide within the environmental movement over nuclear energy through the intimately told stories of thinkers, experts and authors who have come to change their minds about nuclear power. Stone elegantly interweaves the personal narratives of five extraordinary characters – Stewart Brand, Richard Rhodes, Gwyneth Cravens, Mark Lynas and Michael Shellenberger – to explore how these individuals have come to see advanced nuclear power as humankind's greatest hope. By unearthing their personal transformations, Stone pierces commonly held assumptions and provides a captivating deconstruction of popular myths about radiation, waste and weapons, taking viewers on a riveting and mind-altering journey.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 80 Minutes. Filmmaker: Robert Stone.

Pangolin

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This is an intimate glimpse into the journey of a single pangolin; from the moment it is taken from the wild to its final destination in China. Filmed on location across three countries with the help of reformed poachers and wildlife enforcement officers, the film acts as a surrogate for an estimated hundred thousand pangolins that are poached and smuggled annually throughout Southeast Asia and Africa. This film seeks to inform a broad audience about pangolins and the illegal trade they are central to, in order to address the very real danger that pangolins might be extinct before much of the world ever knew they existed. Filmed with minimal commentary to be as immersive as possible, Pangolin offers audiences the opportunity experience the life, death and afterlife of the most illegally trafficked mammal on the planet.

Genre: Wildlife. 13 Minutes. Filmmakers: Katie Schuler, Nick Rogacki

Price of Sand, The

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

"The Price of Sand" is a documentary about the frack sand mining boom in Minnesota and Wisconsin. In addition to a bonanza for a few lucky landowners, mining companies and speculators promise jobs for small towns and remote rural areas. But there's another side to frac sand mining: intense truck traffic, plummeting property values, toxic dust and political shenanigans. Two years ago, an oil company bought a corn field next to my mother's house, in rural Goodhue County, Minnesota. When they announced plans for a 155-acre frac sand mine, I started to ask what that meant. THE PRICE OF SAND is the result.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 56 Minutes. Filmmaker: Jim Tittle.

Price of Sugar, The

2009 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

In the Dominican Republic, a tropical island-nation, tourists flock to pristine beaches unaware that a few miles away thousands of dispossessed Haitians have toiled under armed-guard on plantations harvesting sugarcane, much of which ends up in U.S. kitchens. They work grueling hours and frequently lack decent housing, clean water, electricity, education or healthcare. Narrated by Paul Newman, "The Price of Sugar" follows Father Christopher Hartley, a charismatic Spanish priest, as he organizes some of this hemisphere's poorest people to fight for their basic human rights. This film raises key questions about where the products we consume originate and at what human cost they are produced.

Rebels With A Cause

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

REBELS WITH A CAUSE provides the David and Goliath origin for two of America's most visited, and arguably its most beautiful, urban national parks - San Francisco's Point Reyes National Seashore and Golden Gate National Recreation Area. When California was the nation's fastest-growing state, a handful of politically savvy activists awakened their neighbors, local farmers, and officials to the threat of sprawl and over-development. Passionately, tirelessly, endlessly, they raised support for conservation, successfully battling the most powerful opponents of their day in big industry and government. Their efforts set new precedents for protecting open space and shaped the environmental movement as we know it today.

Genre: Land Preservation. 72 Minutes. Filmmakers: Nancy Kelly and Kenji Yamamoto.

Rebuilding Paradise

2021 Wild & Scenic Film Festival Not Available

On the morning of November 8, 2018, a devastating firestorm engulfed the picturesque city of Paradise, California. By the time the Camp Fire was extinguished, it had killed 85 people, displaced 50,000 residents and destroyed 95% of local structures. It was the deadliest U.S. fire in 100 years — and the worst ever in California's history. Rebuilding Paradise, from Academy Award-winning director Ron Howard, is a moving story of resilience in the face of tragedy, as a community ravaged by disaster comes together to recover what was lost and begin the important task of rebuilding.

Red Gold

2009 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

At the headwaters of the Kvichak and the Nushagak Rivers in Bristol Bay Alaska—the two largest remaining sockeye salmon runs on the planet—mining companies Northern Dynasty and Anglo American have proposed to extract what may prove to be the richest deposit of gold and copper in the world. Filmmakers Ben Knight and Travis Rummel spent 70 days in Bristol Bay documenting the growing unrest among native, commercial and sport fishermen who oppose the proposed Pebble Mine as well as giving mine officials a chance to argue their case. The open-pit and underground Pebble Mine could require the largest dam ever constructed to contain toxic runoff from mine waste. Red Gold is a portrait of a unique way of life that would not exist if the salmon didn't return with Bristol Bay's tide.

Ripe for Change

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Many Californian farmers are struggling to fend off overdevelopment and the loss of lands and traditions, while embracing innovative visions of agricultural sustainability. At the same time, California is where fast food was born and a center of the biotechnology industry and large corporate agribusiness. This fascinating documentary explores the intersection of food and politics in California over the last 30 years. It illuminates the complex forces struggling for control of the future of California's agriculture, and provides provocative commentary by a wide array of eloquent farmers, prominent chefs, and noted authors and scientists. Ripe for Change reveals two parallel yet contrasting views of our world. One holds that large-scale agriculture, genetic engineering, and technology promise a hunger-less future. The other calls for a more organic, sustainable, and locally focused style of farming that reclaims the aesthetic and nurturing qualities of food and considers the impact of agriculture on the environment, on communities, and on workers.

Genre: Food, Climate, Resources. 55 Minutes. Filmmaker: Emiko Omori.

A River's Last Chance

2018 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The Eel River in Northern California is arguably the best opportunity for wild salmon recovery on the entire west coast. The river and salmon have weathered decades of over-fishing, abusive logging, catastrophic floods, droughts and a dam that diverts water and blocks fish passage. Today, the Eel's recovering wild salmon compete for water with the region's lucrative wine and underground cannabis economies. This film shows we can live symbiotically with our watersheds and encourage both a river's recovery and economic future.

Genre: Water/River Issues. 67 Minutes. Filmmakers: Shane Anderson, Jeff Thompson, Jason Hartwick, Pacific Rivers/Northfork Studios

River of Renewal

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

"Whiskey is for drinking, and water is for fighting over," said Mark Twain. In the fight over the waters of the Klamath Basin in California and Oregon, vital interests are at stake. The film portrays this crisis through the eyes of Jack Kohler, a city-raised California Indian who is exploring his ancestral roots. It explores the tribes' "fixing the world" ethos, in which human beings take responsibility for the well-being of the life around them. In recent years, tribal members have joined commercial fishermen, environmentalists, farmers and ranchers in a campaign to make PacifiCorps and its shareholders aware of the damage their dams cause to lives and livelihoods in the Klamath region. Through this film and its companion book, the example of their joint efforts may influence humanity's response to the global challenge of providing water and energy to a growing population without destroying the web of life on which human life depends.

Genre: Rivers, Resources, Community, Climate. 56 Minutes. Filmmaker: Carlos Bolado.

River of Renewal

2010 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The final version of this film returns to Wild & Scenic. It features the conflict over water and wild salmon between farmers, American Indians, and fishermen of the Klamath Basin. Yet what emerges from the heat is dam removal agreement and a consensus that depends on ecological restoration.

River Reborn: The Restoration of Fossil Creek, A

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The remarkable story of Fossil Creek describes the natural and human history of the creek, examines the ecological effects of the dam and hydroelectric facilities, and the 15-year process that led to decommissioning. The restoration of Fossil Creek is emblematic of far-reaching change in our understanding of rivers and dams. Today, people in all parts of the world are reassessing the use of precious water resources. Fossil Creek is a model for this reassessment. It reveals both challenges and opportunities associated with riparian restoration.

Genre: Rivers. 57 Minutes. Filmmaker: Paul Bockhorst.

River's End: California's Latest Water War

2021 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Using California as a microcosm, River's End explores the global water crises. It draws the parallel between the draining of the Owens Valley by LA, made famous by CHINATOWN, and what is happening in real time in Northern California's Bay-Delta. Except this time, the water grab is at the hands of Big Agriculture. River's End implores viewers to learn where their water comes from so that we can save our rivers and the ecosystems and communities that depend upon them.

River Ways

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Exploring the very different lives affected by the same issue, this film follows regular working people and the possible removal of four dams on the Snake River in Eastern Washington. Environmental groups and fishing interests criticize the dams for their negative impact on salmon populations, but agricultural communities dependent on the dams oppose efforts to remove them. Combining interviews with careful everyday observation, and set against the scenic backdrop of the Pacific Northwest, River Ways takes us into the world of tribal and commercial fishermen, wheat farmers, salmon advocates and more. What emerges is a complex portrait of an issue that reaches to the heart of the ideological differences that characterize and divide the Pacific Northwest.

Rock the Boat

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

In the artificial landscape that is Los Angeles, where even palm trees are imported, nothing epitomizes man's short-sighted efforts to reshape the face of the earth more than the LA River: modified beyond recognition, its flow tapped before it even reached the surface, the river was used, abused and essentially forgotten. But when an unassuming boater insists on seeing it as a river again, a local controversy takes on national dimensions, and the once-derided eyesore turns into a source of hope for the City of Dreams. 'Rock the Boat' is a fun, high-energy and ultimately moving film that tells this every-man's adventure and looks at the price nature has to pay for our urban lifestyle.

Genre: Water/River Issues. 54 Minutes. Filmmaker: Thea Mercouffer. 2012 People's Choice Award.

Rooted Lands – Tierra Arraigadas

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

La Querencia de la Tierra.....the love of your place, of your land, of the landscape that has contributed to you as a person. Rooted Lands witnesses the predominantly Hispanic rural villages of Mora and San Miguel Counties in New Mexico (labeled as among the poorest communities in the United States) stand up and speak out against one of the world's most powerful industries. Faced with the threat of natural gas development as mineral leases are bought by oil and gas speculators in these pristine landscapes, the citizens rise up and defend the richness of their culture, their heritage, their landscape, and their place.

The documentary explores the citizen grassroots movement and witnesses how industry has affected residents in the San Juan Basin/Four Corners Area (where New Mexico, Colorado, Utah and Arizona meet) who live in full field fossil fuel development.

Save Sharks, Get Involved

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Rock out with Hammerheads, Great Whites, Leopard Sharks, Galapagos Sharks, White Tip Reef Sharks, and the worst name of all – Soupfin Sharks. Sharks: the coolest animals on the planet happen to be some of the most important for the health of our oceans. They have 6 senses (we only have 5), they have thrived since before Dinosaurs, and they keep our oceans healthy by maintaining balance – yet they will become extinct within 30 years. Our gluttony for shark fin soup has removed 80% of sharks worldwide. Want your grandkids to see sharks? Or their grandkids? Get Involved!

Save the Farm

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

“Save The Farm” tells the story of the largest urban farm in the United States, a 14-acre organic farm in South Central Los Angeles. For 14 years, the farmers feed their families and community, and create an urban oasis. But when the city sells this public land to a developer in a closed door session, activists and celebrities stage an 11th hour tree sit to try to save the farmers from eviction. This film shows that urban farming is a successful and sustainable solution for local and organic food in cities everywhere.

Scars of Freedom

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This is the story of the repercussions of human negligence juxtaposed with the incredible power of human compassion. An entangled humpback whale, left for dead; a fishing net, her anvil. Estimated at 250 kilos this net had cut halfway through the left side of her tail. Between two dives, our film crew heard a radio call announcing some fishermen had spotted an entangled whale. Untrained for such missions, we nonetheless set off to her rescue and captured incredible footage. Beautiful images of humpbacks swimming through the protected waters off Hawaii offer a contrast to the story, concluding with a powerful statement; 'Change begins with the heart.'

Schooling The World

2009 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The question of globalization goes into the classroom. Schooling the World takes a troubling, yet important, look at the often-harmful effects of Western education on indigenous cultures.

Genre: Community. 60 Minutes. Filmmaker: Carol Black.

Schooling the World

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

If you wanted to change an ancient culture in a generation, how would you do it? You would change the way it educates its children. The U.S. Government knew this in the 19th century when it forced Native American children into government boarding schools. Today, volunteers build schools in traditional societies around the world, convinced that school is the only way to a 'better' life for indigenous children. But is this true? What really happens when we replace a traditional culture's way of learning and understanding the world with our own? Beautifully shot on location in the Buddhist culture of Ladakh, SCHOOLING THE WORLD takes a challenging, sometimes funny, ultimately deeply disturbing look at the effects of modern education on the world's last sustainable indigenous cultures. Featuring Wade Davis, Vandana Shiva, Helena Norberg-Hodge, Manish Jain, and Dolma Tsering.

Slow the Flow

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

"Slow the Flow: Make Your Landscape Act More Like a Sponge" brings to life practices and projects that individuals and communities have created to steward our watersheds and slow down the flow of storm water, one of the largest contributors of pollution into our waterways.

The film features a landscaper who shocks his neighbors by putting in native landscaping; a school district that goes green; and a non-profit which puts gardens in the city. The projects and approaches highlighted are very low-tech, cheap, and beautiful -- making a good argument for kicking back and not raking the leaves or watering the lawn.

Spirit Bear photographed by Daisy Gilardini, The

2015 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Described by National Geographic as "The wildest Place in America", the Great Bear Rainforest, is certainly one of the most pristine places on earth I have ever visited. I was ravished by the forest, its inhabitants and their voices. I was bewitched by the elusiveness of the Spirit Bear and the cry of the eagles and, at the same time, I was horrified to know that someone is planning to violate this sacred land by building a huge pipeline and shipping oil in supertankers through pristine waterways. Stories From the Gulf: Living with the Oil Disaster

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

"Stories from the Gulf" is a powerful half hour documentary about the impact on gulf residents of the largest oil spill in American history. Narrated by Robert Redford, the movie is based on audio interviews produced by NRDC and Bridge the Gulf, recorded by StoryCorps, and stunning original documentary photography. The BP oil disaster contaminated marshland and beaches from Texas to Florida, devastated wildlife, and shuttered much of the Gulf Coast economy. One year later, residents still struggle in the disaster's wake, fearful that their way of life on the bayou may soon be lost along with their livelihoods as fisherman, oystermen, and shrimpers, tour guides, and restaurant owners. "Stories from the Gulf" is a riveting portrait of this way of life, built upon the water's bounty, generations of tradition and a tight-knit sense of community.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 21 Minutes. Filmmaker: Daniel Hinerfeld, Renee Barron, Lisa Whiteman.

Stories of the Yuba

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

"This film makes the river talk and the people flow." The words of poet Gary Snyder couldn't be more appropriate for this acclaimed documentary. The festival is honored to be screening Stories of the Yuba in the film's 10th anniversary year. In 1992, Schiffner returned to the river of his youth, the Yuba, after being away for 20 years. It was then that he committed to making a film as part of what he says is "repaying a debt to the river that had given me so much." He hiked the 60 miles of the entire South Yuba, and led an extensive search into the archives of Northern California to discover the story behind the ruins and relics he found during filming. Schiffner spoke with numerous local people who share their insights in the film about why the Yuba is so important to them and the community. Of course, the beautiful cinematography of the river needs no explanation.

Story of Broke: Why There's Still Plenty of Money to Build a Better Future, The

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

The United States isn't broke; we're the richest country on the planet, and a country where the richest among us are doing exceptionally well. But the truth is, our economy is broken, producing more pollution, greenhouse gasses and garbage than any other country. In these and so many other ways, it just isn't working. But rather than invest in something better, we continue to keep this 'dinosaur economy' on life support with hundreds of billions of dollars of our tax money. "The Story of Broke" calls for a shift in government spending toward investments in clean, green solutions—renewable energy, safer chemicals and materials, zero waste, education. These are real solutions that can deliver jobs and a healthier environment. It's time to rebuild the American Dream... but this time, let's build it better.

Streams of Consequence

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

In summer 2010, photographer James 'Q' Martin and conservation biologist Chris Kassar started an organization called Rios Libres. The organization uses multi-media to join the fight to protect the wild lands of Patagonia from proposed dams that threaten two of the most pristine rivers in one of the world's most spectacular regions.

Last April, Q traveled south once again and landed in the thick of some of the largest anti-dam protests the country has ever seen. He captured historic footage of the protests, then spent nine weeks traveling the length of the country talking to gauchos, scientists, activists and the public in search of answers. The result is a solution-based film that addresses the hard questions that remained unanswered in Rios Libres's first film: "What does an alternative energy model look like?" "How do the Chileans feel about it?" and "Could Chile become a global leader by gaining energy independence via green technology?"

Tales of the San Joaquin – A River Restoration

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

For the first time in nearly 60 years, the 350-mile long San Joaquin River, the second largest in California, has come back to life. The hope-filled Tales of the San Joaquin – A River Restored revises an earlier version of the film that was used as evidence in a successful federal lawsuit to restore the river. For twenty years an activist coalition fought in the courtroom to restore the river and return salmon to the San Joaquin's waters. This newly re-edited version provides more details on the historic plight of the river, the beauty of the river before water diversion for agriculture reduced the river to a desert, and features a visual ballet of the restored water coursing down the dry river bed with local grape farmer Walt Shubin as our guide.

Genre: Rivers. 55 Minutes. Filmmaker: Christopher Beaver.

Tambogrande

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

In 1999, the residents of Tambogrande, a small town in northern Peru, learned that the Fujimori government had secretly granted mining concessions on their land to a multi-national corporation. The company's plans for an open-pit gold mine would involve relocation of half of the town's residents, and contaminate the soil and ground water in this agricultural region famous for its fruit orchards. Aware of the environmental and health consequences of a gold mining operation in another Peruvian town, Choropampa, the residents of Tambogrande organized The Defense Front to protect their town. The film traces the history of the region, including the pioneering efforts of mango farmer Godofredo Garcia Baca, the leader of the protest movement who, beginning in the mid-Sixties, had helped transform Peru's northern desert into an important agricultural region.

Tar Creek

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

TAR CREEK is the story of the worst environmental disaster you've never heard of: the Tar Creek Superfund site. Once one of the largest lead and zinc mines on the planet, Tar Creek is now home to more than 40 square miles of environmental devastation in northeastern Oklahoma: acid mine water in the creeks, stratospheric lead poisoning in the children, and sinkholes that melt backyards and ball fields. Now, almost 30 years after being designated for federal cleanup by the Superfund program, Tar Creek residents are still fighting for decontamination, environmental justice, and ultimately, the buyout and relocation of their homes to safer ground. As TAR CREEK reveals, America's Superfund sites aren't just environmental wastelands; they're community tragedies, too. Until the community fights back. Think Like a Scientist: Boundaries

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Humans construct boundaries -- around our homes, our neighborhoods, and our nations -- to bring order to a chaotic world. But we rarely consider how these boundaries affect other creatures. Meet conservation photographer Krista Schlyer, who has spent the last seven years documenting the environmental effects of the U.S./Mexico border wall, and biologist Jon Beckmann, who studies how man-made barriers influence the movement of wildlife. Schlyer and Beckmann have seen damaging impacts of the border wall firsthand, but they remain optimistic. Humans probably won't stop constructing walls and fences any time soon, but planning our boundaries with wildlife in mind can help prevent these structures from causing environmental harm.

Time to Swim

2016 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Due to the lack of rainfall in the winter of 2013-2014, hundreds of Chinook salmon were stuck in pools in the lower Mattole River, in northwestern California. During normal winters, salmon that come up the Mattole are nearly invisible, due to very turbid water conditions. This year was different--the water was crystal clear, and ideal for filming. Original song by the Shook Twins.

To the Ends of the Earth

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The rise of extreme energy, the end of economic growth, the people caught in the middle. This film brings forward the voices of those who not only denounce the rise of extreme energy, but also envision the new world that is taking shape in its stead: a future beyond the resource pyramid, a post-growth economy. For example, the mayor of an Inuit village in Canada's high Arctic who is concerned that seismic testing for oil in the ocean is blowing up the eardrums of the animals that the Inuit hunt to survive. Or the environmental lawyer who goes on a journey to areas that produce energy for the Tarsands of Alberta – he learns of the inputs of energy that have to be put into this resource - and the reasons why the second largest oil project in the world is economically unsustainable. Or the river conservationist in Utah who fights to protect the Colorado River from oil shale projects that would disturb its headwaters.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 56 Minutes. Filmmaker: David LaVallee

Tramping in Bohemia

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

In Communist Czechoslovakia, it wasn't so difficult to find a sense of freedom. All you needed was a backpack, a guitar, and a place to sleep under the stars. That has always been the escape strategy of the Czech tramps, outdoorsmen and women who hike, camp, canoe and ride the rails. Inspired by the American West, tramps adopted country songs, cowboy dress and English names to create a distinctly Czech subculture that offered a taste of romanticism and freedom. But in today's democratic Czech Republic, there's little reason for rebellion and escape. Is there still a place for these old romantics and the youth culture that defined them?

Genre: Global Perspective. 30 Minutes. Filmmaker: Margot Buff.

Trashed

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

What is one of the fastest-growing industries in the United States? The garbage business. What to do with waste is an issue influenced by every American, most of whom never consider the consequences. Nor, it seems, the implications to our biosphere. At times humorous, but deeply poignant, Trashed examines the American waste stream fast approaching a half billion tons annually. The film analyzes the causes and effects of the seemingly innocuous act of taking out the garbage while showcasing the individuals working to affect change and reform the current model.

Genre: Resources, Community, Climate. 60 Minutes. Filmmaker: Bill Kirkos.

Trashed

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

Trashed looks at the risks to the food chain and the environment through pollution of our air, land, and sea. The film reveals surprising truths about the very immediate and potent dangers to our health. It is a global conversation from Iceland to Indonesia between the film star Jeremy Irons and scientists, politicians, and ordinary individuals whose health and livelihoods have been fundamentally affected by waste pollution. Visually and emotionally, the film is both horrific and beautiful: an interplay of human interest and a political wake-up call.

Genre: Oceans. 97 Minutes. Filmmaker: Candida Brady, Titus Ogilvy.

Travelers Between Two Worlds

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This Film is about the life cycle of the Southeast Pacific humpback whales, between their feeding grounds in the Antarctic and Sub-Antarctic, and their mating grounds in the Tropic. It was shot on super 16 mm in the pacific coasts of Colombia and the Patagonian fjords in Chile. A song that talks about the whales, mixed with their songs, was specially composed for the documentary by two of the preeminent masters of the traditional Colombian Pacific music: Hugo Candelario and Camilo Vargas. In spite of being a protected species, humpbacks continue to face many dangers that threaten their existence.

Trout on the Wind: The Hemlock Dam Removal Story

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Trout on the Wind: the Hemlock Dam Removal Story highlights the successful removal of an aging harmful dam and the restoration of Trout Creek in the lower Columbia River Gorge. The dam was built by the Civilian Conservation Corps to provide power and irrigation for a work camp in the area. In the 1970s, the dam fell into disrepair and it was impairing water quality, habitat, and passage for Lower Columbia River steelhead. This project brought the local community together to remove and provided an excellent hands-on learning experience on restoring a wild river system in the Columbia River Gorge.

Genre: Water, Fish, Rivers. 22 Minutes. Filmmaker: Sam Drevo, Ralph Bloemers.

Trout that Saved Mono Lake, The

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

On a warm fall day in October, 1984 a fly fisher happened upon an Eastern Sierra creek that had been mostly dry since the LADWP diverted it in 1941 to flow hundreds of miles south to Los Angeles. Rush Creek flowed once more from the dam at Grant Lake seven miles to the mouth at Mono Lake, and it was alive with trout. Twenty-five years later, the fly fisher returns to Rush Creek to tell the story of the legal battle that ensued in 1984 and to discover the fate of the trout that saved a dying lake.

Unforeseen, The

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

A modest real estate developer, Gary Bradley had big ideas. His concept was the 4,000-acre

Circle C Ranch, an upscale subdivision—a city within a city—a few miles upstream from Barton Springs, a much-loved water wonder in Austin. Partnering with the corporation Freeport-McMoRan gave Bradley economic clout but also proved to be his downfall, for the company had an egregious environmental record. The film chronicles the ensuing battle among Bradley and the developers, the environmental activists (including Robert Redford, who learned to swim in Barton Springs), politicians and property owners. Complex questions arise: What are an individual's rights to own, develop and sell property; How much growth is good; When does public space turn into a marketplace; and, Who is accountable for the repercussions of this growth?

Genre: Community, Resources, Climate , Water. 93 Minutes. Filmmaker: Laura Dunn.

Water Tower, The

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Three decades ago, filmmaker Pete McBride had the opportunity to climb Linana, the false summit of Mt. Kenya. He was 9. He discovered his first glaciers and became enthralled with this African mountain, the second highest in the continent, which produces 70% of Kenya's water supply. Today, it is changing. Its glaciers are retreating. Some have already vanished. McBride partners with Challenge21 climber Jake Norton and a team of local Kenyans and athletes to understand this iconic mountain's vast watershed and see how its transformation is rippling downstream. The journey is more than a climb, more than an expedition. It is a water wakeup call and a physical and symbolic quest to find Ngai, the Samburu people's local water God, who is said to live atop this 17,057 foot "Water Tower". Genre: Water/River Issues. 28 Minutes.

When harvest time arrives, Sylvie must decide if she will share her precious watermelon babies with the world.

Genre: Food. 38 Minutes. Filmmaker: Richard Power Hoffmann.

Watershed: Exploring a New Water Ethic for the New West

2013 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Whiskey is for drinking, water is for fighting is a well-worn saying when it comes to water politics, but in the Colorado River Basin, where the most dammed, diked, and diverted river in the world struggles to flow, some think fighting may be the only way left to reclaim this valuable resource. Robert Redford's voice hones the narrative of the threats to the once-mighty Colorado River, but Watershed is not all doom and gloom. It renders light moments that illuminate how letting go of the ways of old can lead to a convincing new water ethic – where, again, there can be enough for all.

Genre: Water/River Issues. 56 Minutes. Filmmaker: Mark Decena, Robert Redford.

We Are What We Eat

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Healthy nutritious food should not be an elitist privilege; it should be an inalienable right. Imagine a day when a person can walk into any restaurant, grocery or convenience store, make a random selection and be part of a chain of events based on sustainability, health and a lack of harm. We are currently very far from that day. A good start would be striving for clarity and accountability with regards to the consequences of our choices. This trailer from a soon to be released feature film, examines the complicated chain of what we put into our bodies.

Genre: Food, Resources. 15 Minutes. Filmmaker: Aaron Lucich.

We Eat Fish!

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Alaska remains home to some of the cleanest waters, healthiest salmon runs, and wild, abundant seafood left in the world. These resources, at the heart of our economy, culture, and way of life, are what make Alaska strong. The Clean Water Act sets out a formula for protecting these precious resources. A key factor in the formula is how much fish and seafood a state's residents eat. Ignoring the reality that many Alaskans subsist on wild, healthy seafood, the State of Alaska has arbitrarily set this number outrageously low. We Eat Fish! explores how much fish Alaskans eat, and why it matters to our water, our seafood, and you.

Genre: Water/River Issues. 26 Minutes. Filmmakers: Daven Hafey, Malena Marvin, Kendall Rock

We Live by the River

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

"Native nations of the Yukon River basin join forces to heal the watershed from a century of harm. Enlisting the cooperation of scientists and polluters, indigenous tribes adopted a revolutionary approach to restoring their waters, lands and wildlife damaged by contamination from military, mining and municipal sources. We Still Live Here — Âs Nutayuneân

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

WE STILL LIVE HERE Âs Nutayuneân tells a remarkable story of cultural revival by the Wampanoag of Southeastern Massachusetts. Their ancestors ensured the survival of the first English settlers in America, and lived to regret it. Now they are bringing their language home again. The story begins in 1994 when Jessie Little Doe, an intrepid, thirty-something Wampanoag social worker, began having recurring dreams: familiar-looking people from another time addressing her in an incomprehensible language. Jessie was perplexed and a little annoyed— why couldn't they speak English? Later, she realized they were speaking Wampanoag, a language no one had used for more than a century. These events sent her and members of the Aquinnah and Mashpee Wampanoag communities on an odyssey that would uncover hundreds of documents written in their language, lead Jessie to a Masters in Linguistics at MIT, and result in something that had never been done before – bringing a language alive again in an American Indian community after many generations with no Native speakers. Genre: Indigenous Perspectives. 59 Minutes. Filmmaker: Anne Makepeace. 2012 Jury Award.

We the People 2.0

2017 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

This is a visual essay about the loss of democracy in the United States. Utilizing both original as well as found footage to describe a profound change in thinking at the grassroots level, the story unfolds through the eyes of rural people who have faced decades of toxic dumping, drilling and mining in their communities. We learn the reason why, in spite of all their efforts, they “get what they don't want, again and again,” is because they are, by law, truly powerless in spite of propaganda that says they live in the “best democracy in the world.” Thomas Linzey, a nonprofit attorney's inspiring words shows how, we, the people, can turn this around and lay claim to our democracy. This movement is building as you read this, not just in this country but around the world; our film shows how and where it all began.

Wetlands Preserved: the Story of an Activist Rock Club

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival MISSING

People still rave about the time they first encountered Bob Weir, the Dave Matthews Band, Phish or Pearl Jam at the legendary New York City rock club. Some have seen its signature bus in the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Still others participated in Wetlands' working groups for social and environmental advocacy. On February 16, 1989 Larry Bloch and a team of novices fused music with activism in an altogether distinctive manner. As part of the club's monthly operating budget Bloch created and funded a not-for-profit Center for Social and Environmental Justice. Meanwhile, Wetlands served as a proving ground and nurturing environment for numerous notable acts (many riveting performances appear in the film, with music from the aforementioned bands along with Blues Traveler, Sublime, Ben Harper, 311, Ani DiFranco and many more).

What A Way To Go: Life at the End of Empire

2008 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

Tim Bennett started waking up to the global environmental nightmare in the mid-1980s. Raising kids and pursuing the American dream, he never got around to acting on his concerns. Until now. Bennett examines the stories he was raised with, and then details the grim realities humans now face: escalating climate change, resource shortages, degraded ecosystems, an exploding population, teetering global economies. Bennett questions fundamental assumptions of the Culture of Empire that have led to this unprecedented crisis in human history. He pushes the dialogue where Al Gore did not go. Interviews with well-known authors, noted scientists, friends and family balance scathing and humorous use of archival footage. Finally, Bennett invokes courage and consciousness on the unexplored shores of a future not yet written.

WildWater

2011 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

WildWater is a journey into the mind and soul of whitewater, into the places only river runners can go, places of discovery, solitude and risk. Its a visually stunning feast for the senses, and an expedition into new ideas. Borrowing Hollywood film tools and techniques, including RED digital cinema cameras and world class post production techniques, WildWater brings not only new perspectives, but new images to kayaking and the world of adventure cinema. The film focuses on a handful of people who share a deep passion for wild places, rivers and running whitewater. The result crosses beyond generational and experiential boundaries, even beyond whitewater, to look at the soul of adventure sports and what they mean to all of us as a practice that is about far more than just fun.

Windfall

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival NOT AVAILABLE

Wind power... it's sustainable ... it burns no fossil fuels...it produces no air pollution. What's more, it cuts down dependency on foreign oil. That's what the people of Meredith, NY first thought when a wind developer looked to supplement the rural farm town's failing economy with a farm of their own -- that of 40 industrial wind turbines. But when a group of townspeople discover the impacts that a 400-foot high windmill could bring to their community, Meredith's residents become deeply divided as they fight over the future of their community. With wind development in the United States growing annually at 39 percent, Windfall is an eye-opener for anyone concerned about the environment and the future of renewable energy.

Genre: Energy/Climate Change/Resources. 83 Minutes. Filmmaker: Laura Israel. 2012 Jury Award.

Wings of Life

2014 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

The stories of selected animal characters—a bat, a hummingbird, a butterfly, and a bee—reveal the extraordinary importance of flowers and their pollinator partners. Though we primarily associate flowers with beauty, we often don't realize how essential they truly are—that without flowering plants and their winged messengers, and the foods they produce, we humans might not survive. Using special cinematic techniques, we explore the mystical intersection of the animal and plant worlds where life regenerates itself over and over again. It's this seductive dance that feeds the earth, and today that dance is threatened.

Genre: Wildlife. 80 Minutes. Filmmaker: Louie Schwartzberg, Alix Tidmarsh.

With My Own Two Wheels

2012 Wild & Scenic Film Festival

For Fred, a health worker in Zambia, the bicycle is a means of reaching twice as many patients. For Bharati, a teenager in India, it provides access to education. For Mirriam, a disabled Ghanaian woman, working on bicycles is an escape from the stigma attached to disabled people in her community. For Carlos, a farmer in Guatemala, pedal power is a way to help neighbors reduce their impact on the environment. For Sharkey, a young man in California, the bicycle is an escape from the gangs that consume so many of his peers. With My Own Two Wheels weaves together these five stories into a tale about how the bicycle can change the world—one pedal stroke at a time.
